

THE WHITE HOUSE
WASHINGTON

February 1, 1961

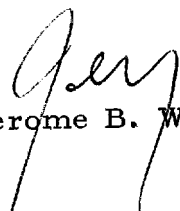

Dear ^{3rd} Al:

The President has indicated his desire to continue the President's Science Advisory Committee as presently constituted, and I am writing in the hope that you will continue to serve the Committee and this office as a consultant in the new Administration.

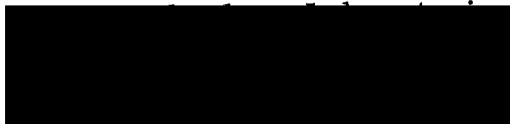

Your work with the Committee has been invaluable in the past, and I am certain that without the active help of consultants, both individually and on panel assignments, its past contributions would not have been possible. With science and technology assuming ever-increasing importance in the affairs of the nation, I fully expect that our opportunities and responsibilities for providing sound advice on the critical and emerging problems of national significance in this vital area will grow in importance in the future.

I would appreciate hearing from you as to your availability and willingness to devote the necessary time to consultant activities with the Science Advisory Committee, and I look forward to our continued association.

Sincerely yours,

Jerome B. Wiesner
